The Romeo Technique Dec 31 2019 Handy and Damita Teemac gives readers the blueprint for successful relationships. They share principles taken from the Word of God which has allowed them to succeed in the midst of obstacles during the course of their dating and marriage relationship. They explain how obedience, faith and action to God's Word is the roadmap to successful relationships. Just as a manufacturer encloses specific instructions with the product that is distributed, so does God. The manual was given to us centuries ago in this same manner-to ensure efficient productivity. Males simply need to read and follow the instructions within the manual, the Bible, to produce efficient results. Faith must be placed in the manufacturer's instructions for a relationship to work. It acts as radar to guide users on the journey to ultimate fulfillment in a dating or marital relationship. Finally, action must be incorporated in the quest for relationship fulfillment. God says "Faith without works is dead." If males truly want a successful relationship with women, they must be willing to practice daily what the manufacturer (God) says in His manual about relationships. Any minor discrepancy within the product could be crucial to the overall performance. Therefore, in order for maximum productivity in any relationship, strict adherence to instruction from God's Word is a must. Our goal is to allow every man to discover the missing link in relationships in a practical manner.
